University of Dhaka (DU)

The University of Dhaka, established on July 1, 1921, is the oldest and largest public university in Bangladesh. Founded during the British colonial period with Sir P.J. Hartog as its first Vice-Chancellor, it opened with just 3 faculties, 12 departments, 60 teachers, and 877 students. Today, it has grown into a massive institution spanning 275 acres in the heart of Dhaka, with 13 faculties, 83 departments, 13 institutes, 56 research centers, and over 37,000 regular students. When you include its 105 constituent and affiliated colleges, the total student population exceeds 200,000.

The university sits on its original 600-acre allotment in the Ramna area, though some land was lost over the decades. Its red-brick administrative building and sprawling green campus are iconic features of Dhaka city. The campus houses 20 residential halls and 3 hostels, a central library that is the largest in Bangladesh with over 617,000 volumes, and a medical center that provides free healthcare to students. The library alone spans three buildings and serves thousands of readers daily.

DU's role in Bangladeshi history cannot be overstated. It was the epicenter of the Language Movement in 1952, the Mass Uprising of 1969, and the Bangladesh Liberation War of 1971. The annual Mangal Shobhajatra, a colorful procession organized by the Fine Arts faculty, was recognized by UNESCO as an Intangible Cultural Heritage. The campus features a 71-foot tall Shaheed Minar, one of the tallest memorials in the country, built to honor the language martyrs.

Academically, DU offers an extraordinary range of programs across arts, science, business, law, engineering, medicine, fine arts, education, pharmacy, biological sciences, earth sciences, and social sciences. Its faculty of 1,992 includes some of the most distinguished scholars in Bangladesh, with several listed among Stanford University's top 2% scientists worldwide. Notable alumni include Nobel Peace Prize laureate Professor Muhammad Yunus, former heads of state, and countless leaders in every field imaginable. In 2024, ten DU faculty members were named to Stanford's top scientists list. A DU nuclear engineering student, Zareen Tahsin Anjum, was selected for CERN's Summer Student Program in 2025, and the CSEDU team won the HackTheAI 2025 inter-university hackathon.

The university follows a session-based academic calendar. Undergraduate admission is highly competitive, conducted through unit-based admission tests divided into Ka, Kha, Ga, and other units covering different faculty groupings. Minimum GPA requirements vary by unit but generally require a GPA of 3.5 or higher in HSC. Graduate programs require a bachelor's degree with a minimum CGPA that varies by department, followed by a written test and viva voce. Application fees are nominal at around BDT 1,500 to 2,000.

Being a public university, tuition fees are minimal. Honors students pay roughly BDT 2,000 to 3,000 per session, while graduate programs cost between BDT 3,000 and 10,000 total. The university offers financial support through 327 trust funds that provide various scholarships, along with government scholarships for meritorious and disadvantaged students. Trust funds like the Shehly Smriti Trust and the Bangladesh Federation of University Women Scholarship provide additional support.

Student life at DU is vibrant and deeply political. The Dhaka University Central Students' Union, or DUCSU, is one of the most active student governments in the country. There are debating societies, cultural organizations, science clubs, business clubs, computer clubs, theater groups, music societies, and sports teams covering cricket, football, basketball, and athletics. The BNCC and Rover Scout groups are also active on campus. Departmental associations organize regular seminars and events.

However, DU has faced its share of controversies. The quota reform movement that began in 2018 saw massive student protests that reshaped national policy on public service recruitment. In July 2024, DU was once again the epicenter of student-led protests, this time with broader political implications. Periodic clashes between student political groups have led to temporary campus shutdowns, and hall allotment disputes occasionally disrupt residential life. The university announced a 7-member committee in July 2026 to address waterlogging in two female dormitories, showing the ongoing infrastructural challenges at this century-old institution. Faculty and staff recruitment notices are published regularly at jobs.du.ac.bd.

Admission Process

The undergraduate admission process at the University of Dhaka for the 2025-2026 academic year is conducted entirely online through the university's admission portal at <https://admission.eis.du.ac.bd>. The online application period typically runs from late October to mid-November (for 2025-26, it was October 29 to November 16, 2025). Students who passed their SSC or equivalent examinations between 2020 and 2023 and their HSC or equivalent examination in 2025 are eligible to apply. The admission test is conducted through five units: Arts, Law and Social Sciences (A unit), Science (B unit), Business Studies (C unit), Fine Arts (F unit), and IBA (Institute of Business Administration, I unit). Minimum GPA requirements include: for the Science Unit, a combined GPA of 8.0 with at least 3.5 separately; for Arts, Law and Social Science Unit, a combined GPA of 7.5 with at least 3.0 separately; for Business Studies Unit, a combined GPA of 7.5 with at least 3.0 separately; and for Fine Arts Unit, a combined GPA of 6.5 with at least 3.0 separately. For the Fine Arts Unit, the exam comprises a 40-mark MCQ and a 60-mark drawing test. All unit tests (except IBA) are held from 11:00 AM to 12:30 PM, while the IBA test runs from 10:00 AM to 12:00 PM. The application fee is Tk 1,050 for most units and Tk 1,250 for the Fine Arts Unit. Payment can be made at any branch of four state-owned commercial banks (Sonali, Janata, Agrani, Rupali) or online via debit/credit cards or mobile financial services. Admit cards can be downloaded from November 24. The admission test schedule for 2025-26 was: Fine Arts Unit on November 29, IBA Unit on November 28, Business Studies Unit on December 6, Arts, Law and Social Sciences Unit on December 13, and Science Unit on December 20. Credit System and Duration

The University of Dhaka operates on a semester system with two semesters per academic year. Most undergraduate Honours programs are four-year (8-semester) programs requiring approximately 120-150 total credit hours depending on the department and program. For the Department of Computer Science and Engineering, the total undergraduate degree requirement is 150 credits completed over 8 semesters. Bachelor of Education Honours is also a four-year program divided into eight semesters. Master's programs are typically one-year (2-semester) programs, though some specialized master's programs extend to 18 months or 2 years. MPhil programs are typically 2 years (4 semesters) and PhD programs are 4 years (8 semesters). The academic year typically begins in January (Spring/1st Semester) and runs through December, with admissions for the main undergraduate intake occurring at the start of the academic year. The university follows a credit-based course system where each credit typically represents one hour of lecture per week or two to three hours of laboratory work per week over a semester. The grading system uses Letter Grades with corresponding Grade Points (A+ = 4.00, A = 3.75, A- = 3.50, B+ = 3.25, B = 3.00, B- = 2.75, C+ = 2.50, C = 2.25, D = 2.00, F = 0.00). Minimum GPA requirements for graduation typically require a minimum CGPA of 2.00 or higher depending on the program. Examination results are published through the university's central Examination Control Office.

Tuition and Costs Overview

The University of Dhaka is a public university heavily subsidized by the Government of Bangladesh, making it highly affordable compared to private institutions. For regular Bangladeshi undergraduate students, tuition costs are minimal. The approximate total first-year costs range from Tk 4,000-12,000 for Arts/Humanities/Social Sciences (non-laboratory programs), Tk 8,000-25,000 for Science/Commerce programs (with lab courses and higher departmental fees), and up to Tk 25,000-50,000 for professional/engineering-type programs. Subsequent years typically cost less, around Tk 5,000-6,000 per year. The admission fee itself is around Tk 1,050-1,250 depending on the unit. Per-year tuition estimates from various sources indicate: BA programs approximately Tk 12,000/year; BSc programs approximately Tk 15,000/year; BBA programs approximately Tk 20,000/year; and LLB programs approximately Tk 18,000/year. For foreign students, fees are significantly higher: for the Department of CSE, students from SAARC countries pay $50 USD per credit, while students from other countries pay $100 USD per credit, plus a development fee of $100 USD per year and applicable university admission fees. Hall/hostel accommodation costs vary by hall but typically range from Tk 5,000-15,000 per year. Transport fees are approximately Tk 1,080 per year. The university's total annual budget for 2025-26 is Tk 1,035.45 crore (approximately $84 million USD). Overall, the total estimated cost for a four-year undergraduate degree including tuition, hall, and other fees ranges from approximately Tk 50,000 to Tk 200,000 (approximately $500-$2,000 USD) for local students, making DU one of the most affordable quality higher education institutions in South Asia.

Rankings

The University of Dhaka is the highest-ranked university in Bangladesh across multiple international ranking systems. In the QS World University Rankings 2026, DU ranked 584th globally, maintaining its position among the world's top 600 universities for the second consecutive year (it was 554th in 2025, 691-700th in 2024, 801-1000th in 2023, and 801-1000th in 2022). In the Times Higher Education (THE) World University Rankings 2026, DU climbed 200 places to secure the 801-1000 range, up from 1001-1200 in 2025, and was recognized as Bangladesh's top-ranked university in the THE index. In the Center for World University Rankings (CWUR) 2025, DU was ranked 1,507th globally out of 21,462 institutions (top 7.1% in the world), 560th regionally in Asia, and 1st nationally with a research rank of 1,448 and an overall score of 68.1. In QS subject rankings 2026, DU was placed 364th globally in Engineering and Technology, 501-550 in Computer Science and Information Systems, 501-550 in Electrical and Electronic Engineering, 501-575 in Mechanical, Aeronautical and Manufacturing Engineering, and 501-550 in Physics and Astronomy. In the QS World University Rankings 2027, DU once again secured a place among the world's top 600 for the third consecutive year. DU demonstrated exceptional strength in employment outcomes with a score of 97.00/100 in the QS 2026 assessment, alongside solid employer reputation ratings of 51.30. Its sustainability efforts earned a score of 54.20. Challenges remain in international engagement with low scores in international student ratio (1.40) and faculty diversity (2.20). Academic reputation stood at 30.50, research impact (citations per faculty) at 6.90, and faculty-student ratio at 10.50, with an overall score of 28.70.

Campus and Facilities Overview

The University of Dhaka is situated in the heart of Dhaka city in the historic Ramna area, occupying approximately 275 acres (111.322 hectares). The campus is renowned for its blend of colonial-era architecture and modern buildings. Key architectural landmarks include Curzon Hall (the first institute of the university), the Arts Building, the Science Building, the Senate Bhaban, and the University of Dhaka Central Library. The campus features 13 faculties, 83 departments, 12 institutes, 20 residential halls, and 3 hostels. Residential halls for male students include Salimullah Muslim Hall, Shahidullah Hall (formerly Dacca Hall), Jagannath Hall, Fazlul Haque Muslim Hall, Haji Muhammad Mohsin Hall, Sir P.J. Hartog Hall, Zahurul Haque Hall, Muktijoddha Ziaur Rahman Hall, Kabi Jasimuddin Hall, Kabi Jibanananda Das Hall, Aparajeyo Bangla Hall, and others. Halls for female students include Begum Fazilatunnesa Mujib Hall, Samsunnahar Hall, Rokeya Hall, Pritilata Hall, Sheikh Hasina Hall, and others. There is also an International Hall for foreign students. Sports facilities include a central field (Mall Chatter), playgrounds at various halls, a gymnasium, and facilities for cricket, football, basketball, volleyball, and indoor games. The campus includes a medical center (Dr. M.A. Rashid Bhaban), the Dhaka University Central Mosque, the TSC (Teacher-Student Centre) which serves as a cultural hub, a post office, a bank, and multiple cafeterias and canteens. Parking remains a significant challenge on campus due to limited space. The university's 'Master Plan' valued at Tk 9,000 crore (later a Tk 2,841.86 crore plan) aims to modernize infrastructure, improve transport services, create bicycle lanes and walkways, and develop green spaces. Accessibility features include a Resource Center for Visually Impaired Students at the Central Library. The campus is located in the Shahbag area, adjacent to the Bangladesh National Museum, the Secretariat, and other important national institutions. The Dhaka Metro Rail has improved access to the campus area in recent years.

Notable Features

The University of Dhaka holds a unique and hallowed place in the history of Bangladesh. It was the epicenter of the Bengali Language Movement of 1952, the six-point movement for autonomy, and the 1971 Bangladesh Liberation War. The first flag of Bangladesh was hoisted on its campus on March 2, 1971, and the independence manifesto was declared there the next day. Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, the founding father of Bangladesh, was a student of the university's law department and was expelled for his political activities. The university produced the first Bengali Muslim graduate, the first female graduate (Lila Nag in 1921), and the first female teacher (Karunakana Gupta in 1935). Famous alumni include Nobel Peace Prize laureate Muhammad Yunus (founder of Grameen Bank and microcredit), physicist Satyendra Nath Bose (known for Bose-Einstein statistics and Bose-Einstein condensate), Fazlur Rahman Khan (the father of tubular skyscraper design who designed the Sears Tower and John Hancock Center), Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, Sheikh Hasina (Prime Minister of Bangladesh), and numerous national poets, writers, scientists, and leaders. The university awarded honorary doctorates to Rabindranath Tagore, Jagadish Chandra Bose, Kazi Nazrul Islam, Amartya Sen, Abdus Salam, Ban Ki-moon, and other global luminaries. The Dhaka University Central Students' Union (DUCSU) is one of the oldest student unions in South Asia. The university has 56 research centers (though many face funding challenges) and publishes the Dhaka University Journal of Science. The university has produced over 1,262 PhDs and has signed cooperation accords with more than 30 universities and research centers worldwide. The university is also known for its role as a central premise for free thought and democratic practices in Bangladesh.

First-year total costs including admission fees, registration, and departmental fees range from Tk 4,000-12,000 for Arts/Humanities, Tk 8,000-25,000 for Science, and up to Tk 25,000-50,000 for professional programs. The LLB Honours program charges a Tk 7,500 department development fee at admission. Hall accommodation costs are additional, typically Tk 5,000-15,000 per year. The approximate total cost for a 4-year undergraduate degree including all fees and hall accommodation is Tk 50,000-200,000 for local students. Fee payment is made at the beginning of each semester. Payment can be made via bKash, debit/credit cards, mobile banking, or at designated bank branches.
